Matrimony and its Hindrances

The New York Times for months past The New York Times for months past has given special prominence to correspondence on the expenses of living, with special reference to young married couples in cities, whose incomes are not proportioned to their tastes. Of course, food, clothing and lodging do not cost very much to those who are satisfied with life in a tenement, with cheap ready-made clothing, and with the homeliest food. They may cost very much, on the other hand, to those who are fastidious, and who have not the power of self-denial. The question to be answered, is how little can a pair exist on without sacrificing pair exist on without sacrificing too many of the enjoyments, conventionally regarded as essential, for the sake of ally regarded as essential, for the sake of domestic happiness. The Time' correspondents, who are obviously real experimenters, differ somewhat in their figures, but the preponderance of sentiment seems to fix about $2,000 per annum as the smallest income on which persons can unite home comfort with social respectability. Those who attempt the combination on from two to five hundred dollars less, must submit to much self-denial with regard to dress and dainties. They are wise if they turn their backs on cheap boarding houses and set up a habitation for themselves, however humble it may be. Such are about the conclusions of a large number of letters, accompanied by statistics to show the data on which the show the data on We may call $2,000 opinions are based. We may call $2,000 as the minimum of income on which an ambitions couple may expect to live, dress fairly well, reside in a respectable neighborhood, and possibly set aside a hundred or two dollars for a life insurance poicy. Greater retrenchment involves a diaregard of all fashionable pretensions even of the mildest sort. We do not suppose that the expense of living, take it all in all, is much, if any less in Cincinnati than in New York. If the figures of the Times, or rather those of its contributors, be accurate, prudent mariage is out of the question with a large and respectable class of young men and women. If the maintainance of a certain degree of style is essential, then the men. If the maintainance of a certain degree of style is essential, then the hachelor who is very comfortable on $1,-200 or $1,500 a year will cripple himself by taking a wife. He would be cruel even if he asked a refined, but thoroughly economical girl to share his fortunes. It is very easy, we know to advise young people to disregard all conventionalities, but social considerations cannot wholly be disregarded. Bold and much loving couples may sometimes defy them with impunity, yet the gain must be large and apparent to justify the sacrifice. A good wite may induced be a helpmate, but women of tact and genius are not very numen of tact and genius are not very nu-merous. Amiable incapacity is no com-pensation for the largely increased bills which are among the bridegroom's earli-est expenses. There is no worse drag on young man than a thrittless wife. On Sunday last a Baltimore minister

On Sinday has a Batheriore minister preached a sermon on the Seventh Commandment, many of the violations of which he attributed to the obstacles which are thrown in the way of marriage, He argued also that it was the duty, as which are thrown in the way of marriage. He argued also that it was the duty, as well as the right of all persons to marry, nuless physically disqualified or having other reasons for remaining single. Without accepting all that the worthy divine advanced, it requires no proof to say that those countries in which marriage is least hampered by restrictions, are the most virtuous. The evils which follow ill-assorted marriages are less than those which result from the restriction of wedlock to the pecuniarily well to do. Were parents more desirous that their sons should have a home of their own, however modest, than that they should hold a place in fashionable society from the first, they might encourage early marriages, and thus give respectable countenance to what is now deemed an imprudence. Unpretentious living on the part of beginners would then cesse to be a step downward.

In Canada, in the old French cold days, hardly a young man reached his majority without taking a wife, and pamajority without taking a sine, and per rental or priestly authority had much to do in guiding his choice. We have no expectation of seeing a return of these simple times, yet there is certainly room for improvement on our present customs. Mr. Foker wanted to have his fling before Mr. Foker wanted to have his fling before wedding the Lady Ann, who had been selected for his consort, but he was none the better for the delay. Could the young men who waste their earnings between twenty and thirry, or at least watch their chances for a moneyed match, be made to feel that they would be far better off with a home of their own, and were expected to have one as soon as possible, and were girls educated with a due reference to their true position in life, there would be far less vice and much more real happiness in our community. This is the Centennial era, and we may well have regard to the matrimonial, as well as to the political example of our forefathers. They generally married young, without waiting for splendid chances or large incomes, and we are quite sure they were at least as happy as their more ambitions descendants.

The Dend-Heaver roman the Philadelphia Transcript | We were last week regaled with we Democratic departure at Democratic depar rank and file, and odds and ends of the Pailadelphia measure that is not loaded with cash to buy their votes—the Centennial Exposition included. Wallace won and Randall went to grass, whereat the dry bones of all the old fossils shook sturdily with glee, and the latter congratulated themselves over the assumption that if the whole Democracy of Philadelphia went to "the demnition bowwows," the State would be "safe" forever in the future. The proof of the pudding, however, is in the eating. ever, is in the eating.

A significant feature of the Convention

A significant feature of the Convention was that, for the first time in a generation, the Pennsylvania Democracy enter the national councils of the party without a preference for a Presidential candidate. In point of fact the delegation will go to St, Louis ready to take the chances, tike genuine ticket-of-leave men, and they will strike the best bargain possible for themselves, under the present circumstances. There is an appositeness in this, as in everything else that the Pennsylvania Democracy do, and it would have been surprising had the Lancaster Convention adonted any other policy but wait on the country, among whom we notice the following:

"We wheel about, we turn about, We do jis so; And every time we wheel about We jump Jim Crow."

And every time we wheel about We jump Jim Crow."

But the richest point in the platform is it its reassertions. For instance, it reassers was the Democratic Convention in 1890 declared before the Democratic patricides struck at the heart of their country—their devotion to the Union of the States; and just exactly what their convention proclaimed the very year that Buckalew had his little rebellion in hand right here in Pennsylvania. It reasserts Democratic loyalty to the Union, while the party everywhere dispenses its ripest and richest rewards among and crowds the Congress of the country with villainous rebels and apologists for treason. We don't think the platform will be of any great service, nor is it in any way likely that the Democratic delegation at home or abroad, will achieve any greater distinction than that of being dead-head passengers to a dead-head National Convention.

A $200,000 Hotel. From the Boffalo (N. Y.) Expresa.

We learn that Dr. R. V. Pierce, proprietor of the "World's Dispensary," in this city, has perfected the purchase of a large lot of land, on which he proposes to erect a large hotel for the accommodation of his numerous patients, coming hither from all points of the compass. The land purchased by the enterprising Doctor is 234 feet front on Prospect avenue, running through to Fargo avenue 332 feet; also an adjoining lot extending from the above to Connecticut street. It is in the midst of our extensive system of public parks, fronts the old and beautiful Prospect Park, is but a short distance from the "Circle" in one direction, and the "Lake Front" in the other. The site selected is a fine one, being both site selected is a fine one, being beautiful and healthful; is one of beautiful and healthful; is one of the M highest portions of our city, easily accessing sible, yet sufficiently retired to secure quiet, and commands a pleasant view of the lake and river, as well as the surrounding city and country. We understand that it is the intention of Dr. U Pierce to erect a hotel at the cost of at least two hundred thousand dollars, in where those who come to enjoy the benefit of his treatment may find all desired accommodations under one roof, instead of being scattered over the city, as at present. We are further given to understand that our architects will be invited to submit plans for the proposed structure without delay.

Mormon Courtship.

Mornion Courtship.

On Saturday a Mormon by the name of Fulmer, says the Salt Lake Zhibane, who had been chosen among the faithful to go on a mission to Arizona, called upon Brigham Young.

"Married?" queried the Prophet.

"Not any," said Fulmer, o'er whose brow forty odd years had left their imprint.

"Must marry, Brother Fulmer, before you go to Arizona to build up the King-dom."

"Don't know anybody who will have do as you say," was her meek reply, as she walked out.

them, the series of revival meetings will be continued through another week at the Presbyterian Church. Several accessions have been made to the membership of the church since they began.

Saturday small hand-bills were thrown all over town advertising that at four of the constructed by himself, leap from the top of the Disciples Church to the roof of Capt. Fink's building, a distance of more than a square. The notice brought together a crowd that througed the streets for a square on each side of the seene. Speculation as to whether the thing would succeed was rife, the generally expressed opinion being that the venturous Professor would break his neck. But he didn't, and after that crowd had waited until six o'clock, it began to dawn on their intellects that the first of April was not a good day for him to jump, or for anything to fly unless it was a wild goose. This morning there is not a man alive that went up to see that jump!

Lancaster. In State Convention, the rank and file, and odds and ends of the discomfitted and demoralized Democracy gathered in the old-fashioned way, and discomfitted and demoralized Democracy gathered in the old-fashioned way, and went to work vigorously to map out their plans for the Presidential campaign. Of course the first thing that was done was the selection of a Rebel sympathizer as President of the body, and, of course, Buckalew and that stripe of patriots found ready recognition. No one could have imagined a different course, for Pennsylvania Democracy would be weaker than water without the taint of traitors and treason. Its consistency in this respect is indisputable, for which reason the party is draggled with disaster and defeat. The Lancaster business was but a repetition of the old story, and it wilbring about the same old result.

There were one or two side scenes that worked more than usual interest, the introduction of the personal struggle of Wallace and Randall being prominent. Of course, the country Democracy came cocked and primed for the fight against Philadelphia and her delegation, just as the country clowns in the Legislature are always ripe and ready to oppose every Palladelphia measure that is not loaded with cash to buy their voices—the Centennial Exposition included. Wallace would wilk describe the contract of the party of the part of people attending it who were directly descended from the F. F. V.'s. of 100 years ago. Among these were Mrs. Col. Lewis W. Washington, great-greatniceo of Washington, Miss Emma Chamberlayne, descended directly from President Madison; Miss Sallie Aylett, whose great-great-grandmother was a daughter of Patrick Henry; George Washington Burnett, great-great-nephew of both Gen. and Mrs. Washington; Gen. Harry Helh, whose father's great-grand-uncle was Col. Jack Heth of the British army; Wm. L. Royall, as his great-grandter, Col. Thomas Marshall, of the Revolution, the father of the chief-justice. Many descendants of the Randolphs, Marshalls-Rolfes, Madisons, and even of Pocahontas, were at this court.

been surprising had the Lancaster Convention adopted any other policy but wais and watch, at this juicy juncture in their political lives.

To those who delight in platforms, that of Lancaster, in contrast with that of Lancaster, in contrast with that of Lancaster, in contrast with that of Eric and all before it, is refreshing enough. Without intentional irreversance, and with no desire to introduce "the nigger" in Democratic circles and thereby mar the peace and harmony thereol, we may be permitted to say that, to the financial question at least, the utterances of the convention vividly recall Jim Crow in his palmiest days, and we can fancy Monaghan, and Buckelew, and can fancy Monaghan, and Buckelew, and with can fine Monaghan, and Buckelew, and with a supplied to the convention vividly recall Jim Crow in his palmiest days, and we can fancy Monaghan, and Buckelew, and with can fine Monaghan, and Buckelew, and with a supplied to the convention vividly recall Jim Crow in his palmiest days, and we can fancy Monaghan, and Buckelew, and with the supplied of the convention vividly recall Jim Crow in his palmiest days, and we can fancy Monaghan, and Buckelew, and with the supplied of the convention vividly recall Jim Crow in his palmiest days, and we can fancy Monaghan, and Buckelew, and with the supplied of the convention vividly recall Jim Crow in his palmiest days, and we can fancy Monaghan, and Buckelew, and with the supplied of the convention vividly recall Jim Crow in his palmiest days, and we can fancy Monaghan, and Buckelew, and with the supplied of the convention vividly recall Jim Crow in his palmiest days, and we can fancy Monaghan, and Buckelew, and we can fancy Monaghan, and Buckel
